Using video projection and three-dimensional sound that reacts to the viewers' presence and movements, UT Dallas professor Frank Dufour, with his wife Kristin Lee Dufour, depict Orpheus surrounded by shadows of the underworld. The piece made its debut (http://www.utdallas.edu/news/2011/4/28-10481\_ATEC-Prof-Stages-Audiovisual-Exhibit-in-France\_article.html) at The Vasarely Foundation in Aix-en-Provence, France, earlier this year.

POLL

The MFAH has hired Gary Tinterow as its new director.

- Tinterow seems cool; he oversaw the Met's rooftop stuff and other good shows there. Go Gary!
- Let's hope he can take all that money and put the MFAH in the highest tier of American museums.
- Will he follow Peter Marzio's precedent and have the museum hire his significant other?
- I'm not going to be satisfied until we have a Houston Dynamo's show at the MFAH. Or at least something involving "Twilight" costumes.
